INTRODUCTION.

THE Pedigrees in this Volume have been collected by me between the years 1880-1904, whilst engaged in searching the Plea Rolls in the Public Record Office for materials for a History of Staffordshire. In the process of examining the Rolls for this purpose, I have come frequently across suits which were of considerable interest for the history of other counties, and at the request of the late Mr. Walford Selby of the Record Office, who at that date was editing the New Series of the Genealogist, they were published in that Journal. These Pleas will be found between the pages 1 to 511 of the Volume, and were printed in Volumes VII to XXI under the Editorship of Mr. Keith Murray and Mr. Forsyth Harwood.

The suits from pages 512 to 528 are taken from Bracton's Note Book in the British Museum (Additional MS. 12269), and were printed originally in Volumes V and VI of the Genealogist, New Series, whilst it was under the editorship of Mr. Selby. An account of this Note Book was communicated by me to the Genealogist in 1884 and will be found in Volume II, New Series. It was afterwards printed by Mr. F. W. Maitland, and reference should be made to his work for the full text of the suits named in it, for many of the Rolls from which the suits were taken are no longer to be found at the Record Office.

The suits from page 528 to the end of the volume were printed in the Reliquary and Antiquary at an earlier date than the others. They have been added to this Volume in order to make the collection complete: unfortunately, I made no systematic notes of suits relating to other counties besides Staffordshire anterior to the reign of Edward III and the suits of an earlier date than 1327 are few and far between. If another antiquarian student should therefore follow in my footsteps, he will find ample material to reward him if he would deal in the same way with the Plea Rolls between the years 1200 and 1327.

Pedigrees from the Plea Rolls,

By Major-General the Hon, GEORGE WROTTESELEY.

The following notes from the Plea Rolls in the Public Record Office have been taken at various times, whilst engaged in searching the Rolls of the Courts of Law, for suits which throw light on the history of Staffordshire. In the process of examining the Records for this object, I come frequently upon cases which are of considerable interest for the history of other Counties, and as they will be useful to archæologists and future County Historians, and I know of no more appropriate destination for them than the pages of "The Genealogist," it is proposed to lay them, from time to time, before the readers of this Magazine.

Roger de Bavent, Thomas de Grymstede and Richard Dansey claimed to be the nearest heirs, being of the whole blood, whilst James de Audeleye and John Lestraunge were of the half blood only.

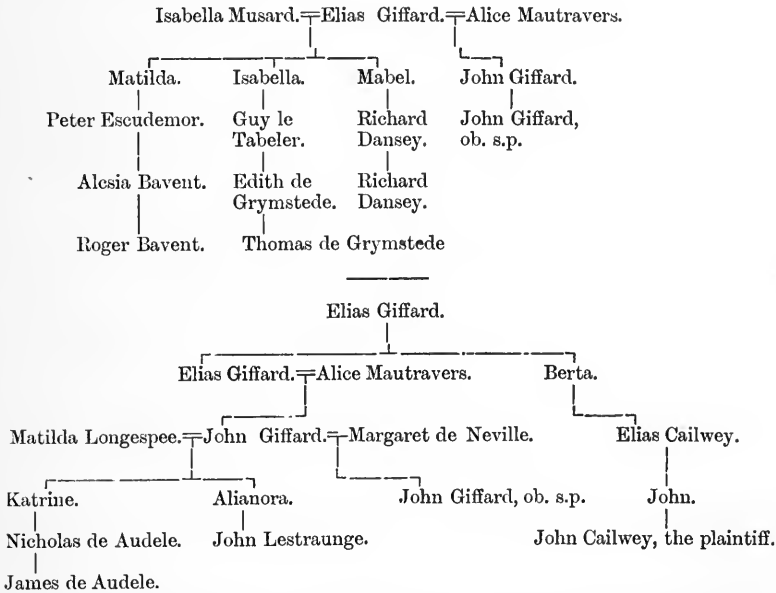

The King's attorney, however, who appeared for the King's wards

James de Audley and John Lestrangle, claimed that they were the nearest heirs, and he gave the following pedigree to shew that the descendants of Matilda, Isabella, and Mabel were not of the whole blood.

The suit was then adjourned to the following Easter term.

At Easter term a new claimant appeared in the person of John Cailwey or Caillewe, who gave a descent from Elias Giffard, the father of the Elias Giffard of the last pedigree, and the jury found in his favor on the ground that he was of the whole blood whilst the other plaintiffs were of the half blood only, and the jury being required to shew why John son of Fulk le Straunge and the other plaintiffs were of the half blood only, gave these pedigrees.

The Court finally gave judgment in favor of John Cailwey in 4 Ed. 3, and by a fine levied in the same year, with the King's consent, John de Caillewe conveyed the Castle and Barony of Brumfield in Cos. Gloucester and Wilts to John Maltravers, the younger, for which John Maltravers gave him £1,000.

The pleadings give these pedigrees:—

The defendant denied that Richard Perers, the elder, had issue Richard, Margaret and Rose, as stated by the plaintiff, and pleaded that John Fitz Herbert was son of one Agnes, daughter of Osbert de Stretton, and that Richard de Perers never had a daughter named Rose. The jury found for the defendant.

The Prior stated that his monastery had held the manors from time out of memory; and at the adjournment Richard made default and the suit was dismissed. (See a previous suit of 8 Ric. 2, ante p. 163.)

The pedigree cannot be correct in its present form, as there are at least four generations too many.

Thomas Cherlton, of Appeley, held the manors of Withiford and Hagurcote and other lands of the King in capite, and died temp. Richard 2.

John de Knyghteleye had acquired the marriage of the heir, Thomas de Knighteleye, and had demised the manor of Withiford to Roger Austyn for a yearly rent of twenty-six marks, and as Elena was of age when she married, the custody of a moiety of the manors of Thomas de Charleton fell to the King, who had granted them to Robert Fraunceys, Kt., till the full age of Thomas de Knyghteleye, and a moiety of the manor of Withiford fell to John de Knyghteleye as custos of Thomas, and they had levied a distress because the ferm was in arrear.

Roger Austyn resisted the distress because the manor of Withiford had been taken into the King's hands.

From another suit, Coram Rege, of the same date, it appeared that Ann Cherlton had married William de Knighteleye without the consent of her guardian, John de Knighteleye.

N.B. A female heir was considered of age, if married, and the marriage had been consummated.

Essex.—Edward Charleton, Chivaler, sued Robert, the Bishop of London, for the next presentation to the church of Great Dunmowe.

Another suit on m. 644 shews that Henry, Earl of Northumberland, Henry de Percy, Chivaler, Edmund de Mortimer, Chivaler, William de Beauchamp, Chivaler, and six others, were executors of the will of Roger de Mortimer, Earl of March.

These suits throw some light on the rebellion of the Percys in the following year, which was, without doubt, undertaken in the interest of the young Edmund, who was the rightful heir to the Crown, but as the latter was in the power of the King, it would have been dangerous to have proclaimed the fact. Henry IV took advantage of this reticence to issue a proclamation that the Percys and Owen Glendower intended to divide the Kingdom between them.

Cestria.—Four suits by which Hugh, son of Richard Venables, of Kynderton, Kt., recovered several manors and other property which had been held by his ancestors. The defendant is styled William Venables, of Kinderton, but was probably William Venables, of Bradwall, in temporary possession of Kinderton. Sir Richard Venables had joined Henry Percy in his insurrection of 1403, and had been beheaded after the battle of Shrewsbury. He had apparently enfeoffed William Venables in all his manors before he took the field. The pedigree given in three of the suits is as under :—

In the first suit Hugh sued William Venables for the manors of Bradwall and Newton, and lands in Stanthorn, Waverton, Legh, Berterton and other places, which had been given to Hugh de Venables and Katrine, his wife.

In the second suit Hugh sued the same defendant for land in Hulm, which had been given to Hugh de Venables and Agatha, his wife.

In the third suit Hugh sued the same William for the manors of Bradwall, Neuton in Wyrhale, Eccleston, Kynderton Sprouston, Merston, Wylton, and de Cros, which had been given to Hugh de Venables, and Katrine, his wife.

In the fourth suit Hugh sued the same William for a salt-pan in Northwich, which Henry Peytefyn had given to Hugh, son of Hugh de Venables and the heirs male of his body, in the reign of Edward I. In this suit the pedigree is carried up to another generation, and is as follows :—

William Venables conceded the claim in all the suits.

John de Ardene, seised of the manors, = Elena.
advowsons and rent, temp. Ed. 3.

The pleadings state that Thomas and Walkeline were illegitimate, being styled sons of Elena only—and that John de Ardene, the husband of Elena, had left no male heir of his body. Margaret claimed under a settlement made by her husband in 8 H. 4, a licence of alienation having first been obtained from the Prince of Wales, as Earl of Chester, and a verdict was given in her favour. Under a previous settlement of 21 E. 3, which was made likewise with the licence of the Prince of Wales, as Earl of Chester, the same manors, advowsons and rents had been settled on John de Ardene and Elena, his wife, for their lives, with remainder to Thomas, son of Elena, and the heirs male of his body, with remainder to Walcheline, brother of Thomas, and the heirs male of his body, and failing such, to the heirs of the bodies of John and Elena. Devon, and the manors of Knyghtteton, Lutton and Bradepole, two Hundreds named, advowsons, churches, etc., in co. the heirs male of his body, and failing such on John, brother of Theobald, and the heirs male of his body, and failing such on Richard, brother of John, and the heirs male of his body, and failing such on the right heirs of Ralph for ever.

The pleadings therefore give this descent, by which it would appear that the Russells had assumed the name of Gorges.

The plaintiffs stated that the moiety in dispute was Berkeley's moiety, not Camels, and that the Matilda of the pedigree was not daughter of Philip and Agnes.

See the suit ante p. 236, where William de Byngham is called son of Alice Bertram, of Byngham. Richard de Bingham had apparently settled the property on his male illegitimate issue by Alice Bertram, and his daughter, Alice, who had married a Sutton, was born in wedlock.

The exact relationship of Isolda to one of the Richards in the pedigree has been given on the record and afterwards expunged, but judging by chronology, it was probably as shewn by the dotted line. The fact of three Richards succeeding one another evidently made this part of the pedigree obscure, and the plaintiffs were not quite certain of it themselves.

The plaintiffs gave this descent:—

They stated that John Pelham, the father of Emma, was seised of the manor of Treve alias Ryver, co. Suffolk, and held it of Henry, Earl of Northumberland, as of his Honour of Petworth, by the service of one-fourth of a Knight's fee, and they produced the deed of the Earl, by which he granted to them the marriage of the three coheirs, dated 22 Nov., 17 E. 4, the coheirs being all under the age of fourteen years, and they asserted that they had been in peaceable seisin of the wardship until the 1st of Jan., 17 E. 4, when the defendants had carried off Emma from London in the parish of St. Mary of Aldermanbury, and for which they claimed £200 as damages. According to an Inquisition p.m. taken in 27 Hen. 6, 1448-9, (apparently) on the death of John Chaney,¹ the manor of Great Sampford, called Giffords, had descended to John Gifford and Margaret (sic) his wife, and from them to William Gifford, their son, and from William to John Gifford, son of William, who died s.p., and the manor had descended to Margaret Chaney, the sister of John and daughter of William Gifford. ¹ The Inquisition is stated in the Calendar to have been taken on the death of John Giffard, but the contents of it shew this could not have been the case. John Giffard is stated in the Inquisition to have died in 1414, thirty-four years before the date of the Inquisition.

A suit in Banco, Easter Term 20 Ed. 4, m. 456, shews that John Vampage claimed by a grant of Richard Urdeley and Isabella.

William de Dive produced a deed of the same King, granting Dadington to William de Chesney and his heirs, and he stated that after William had died, the manor had descended to Ralph, son of Hugh, his nephew, and from Ralph, to Lucy, who had been in ward to the King, and had been married by him to Guy de Dive, his father.
